

Frog Crossin' Pottery

Frog Crossin' Pottery was established as a business in 2005. Owner Gwen Bowen took the "backyard" pottery business to full time four years ago. Gwen is a former art teacher who always dreamed of moving to North Carolina to engross herself in its rich history of pottery. Living in Matthews, she developed a style of fun and functional pottery with a whimsical twist. Many of her items (but not all) include sculpted creatures-frogs, lizards, butterflies, and turtles. All meant to put a smile on your face while being used. Now living in Unionville, she loves coming back weekly to experience the gracious and friendly market atmosphere in Matthews.
